THE MARKETS.

New York, September 17.—The stock market opened higher this morning, and prices rose steadily until after bond offerings became known. The bears then attacked the list on the theory with the result that bond offerings have been discontinued, and in their efforts to break their values they were aided by considerable realizations. The Boston failure also used a club with which it knocked off quotations. The market closed quiet, but weak, generally small fractions below the opening figures.

CHICAGO, September 17.—Wheat opened rather stronger and 40¢ higher, influenced by the stronger foreign market advice, but a sudden weakness occurred and prices dropped off 1¢, which was credited to the rumor of a failure of a firm in Boston.
